

Tim Ward

*Managing Partner, Southern California
McKinsey & Company*

Based in Los Angeles, Tim has more than 18 years of consulting experience. Since joining McKinsey in 2004, his work has spanned a wide range of healthcare topics for payers, providers, pharmacy benefit managers, and pharmaceutical firms.

Tim is the Managing Partner in Southern California and leads McKinsey's work in Medicaid and co-leads our State & Local Government Practice.

From 2008-2012 he was the editor of McKinsey's Health International journal. Tim was previously based in McKinsey's London office where he helped lead our support to European health regions, payers, and providers during an intensive phase of the region's healthcare reforms.

Tim serves on the Board of Big Brothers Big Sisters of Greater Los Angeles.

Tim has lived in the USA, the UK, and Sweden. He holds an MA with first-class honors in philosophy, politics and economics from University College, Oxford, where he was awarded the university's Hicks & Webb-Medley Prize in Economics.