

Scott Drury

Chief Executive Officer
Southern California Gas Company

Scott Drury is chief executive officer (CEO) of Southern California Gas Company (SoCalGas), a Sempra regulated California utility.

Previously, Drury was the president of San Diego Gas & Electric (SDG&E), another Sempra regulated California utility. Under his leadership, SDG&E made significant strides in modernizing the energy grid to enhance safety and reliability, while providing customers with increasingly sustainable energy choices and creating long-term value for all stakeholders.

He joined the Sempra family of companies in 1986 and has held various management positions with increasing responsibility, including chief energy supply officer; vice president of human resources, diversity and inclusion, director of safety and emergency services, and director of supply management for both SDG&E and SoCalGas.

Drury serves on the board of directors for the American Gas Association, the advisory board of the Fowler College of Business at San Diego State University and the community advisory council of Alzheimer's San Diego.

He holds a bachelor's degree in public administration and a master's degree in business administration from San Diego State University, as well as a certificate in human resources and labor relations from Cornell University.